

PHYSICIAN SHOTS JEALOUS HUSBAND WHO FORCED WAY INTO HIS APARTMENTS.

Dr. Cronk Wounds Arlington in a Struggle Over the Sick Bed of Intruder's Son.

Thinking he would find his wife in the apartment of Dr. Harrison Taylor Cronk, at No. 205 West Eleventh street, Frederick Arlington forced his way into the physician's bedroom at 3 o'clock this morning. He was shot through the thigh for his intrusion.

Arlington is at St. Vincent's Hospital in a precarious condition.

The house in which the shooting occurred is conducted as a boarding-house by Mrs. Arlington. It is a substantial three-story brick structure in the old English style, so common in Greenwich Village.

Dr. Cronk's father resided in the house while he lived and the present Dr. Cronk has always lived there. A year ago Mrs. Arlington succeeded the former boarding-house mistress.

Operated on Her Son.

Dr. Cronk had his office and sleeping room on the first floor. Yesterday afternoon, assisted by several surgeons from St. Vincent's Hospital, he performed a delicate operation upon the throat of eleven-year-old Frederick Arlington. He had the boy brought down to his room to sleep beside him on a cot that he could be properly looked after during the night.

Dr. Cronk and the lad were sleeping soundly when Arlington reached home at 3 o'clock this morning. Why he conceived the idea that his wife was in Dr. Cronk's apartment he has not explained. He burst into the room, and, springing over to the bed, seized Dr. Cronk by the throat.

The physician is a muscular young fellow, not yet thirty years of age, while Arlington is fifty. Arlington was forced to release his deadly hold, and then the two men struggled about the room.

Dr. Cronk tripped over the cot in which the invalid boy lay, and Arlington, getting a temporary advantage, forced him down on the bed and was again attempting to choke him, when the doctor got his right arm free, reached under his pillow for his revolver and shot his assailant through the right thigh.

Five minutes later Dr. Cronk, barefooted, wearing only trousers and undershirt, and bearing in his hands the shreds of his nightgown, rushed into the Charles street station and reported the shooting.

Sergt. Forester was sent to the house. He found Arlington on the floor in what he thought was a dying condition and began to take his ante-mortem statement. Arlington said he suspected his wife age, skull crushed by brick; probably fatal.

Attacked Stock Yards Caravan.

One of the most serious riots broke out at Congress and State and Harrison and State streets. By some manoeuvre the strikers succeeded in dividing the thirty-eight wagon caravan (the second one to leave the yards to-day) so that the front of it lay at Congress street on State, and the rear at Harrison.

While the vanguard battled with the crowd, which hurled broken bottles, stone eggs and other missiles, including spoils of thread thrown by women sympathizers in the crowd, the rear guard pathfinders in the crowd and twice they were returned and crowded back.

It was the most desperate clash the police have had with the citizens in years. In several instances the strikers and their sympathizers wrenched clubs from the policemen and used them against their owners. Meanwhile several men had gained a position of advantage on the elevated loop, from which they fired missiles at the officers.

In this way Officer John McGuire was hit in the head with a horseshoe and seriously injured that he had to be taken to a hospital. Officer John Lincum was less seriously hurt. Gus Billings, one of the crowd, was clubbed into insensibility by the police, and he, too, was taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

Third Charge of Police Won.

After the two ineffectual rushes at the crowd mentioned, the police managed to organize themselves in better shape, and for the third time rushed the mob. This time they were successful. A number of heads were broken, but their owners in most cases escaped. Several arrests were made. It was impossible to obtain anything like a complete list of the injured.

The caravan, after twenty minutes delay, began to move, but not in peace, for the crowd followed closely. The position and the case went over. McLeilan will be in court again to-morrow.

HOPE NOW THAT
MCCOY WILL RECOVER.

The plucky struggle McCoy has been making against death bore fruit at noon to-day, when a change for the better was apparent in his condition. His sight, which it was feared had been entirely destroyed, returned to him to such an extent that he was able to recognize relatives who were admitted to his room.

These relatives were his sisters, Mrs. J. W. James, Mrs. P. J. Donohue and Miss Alice McCoy. Accompanied by Mr. Donohue and McCoy's twelve-year-old boy George, the women were taken to the bedside of the wounded man.

To his joyful surprise he recognized them and spoke to them. He told them that he felt he was going to live and asked them to pray for him.

"I feel," he said, "that the worst is past and that I will pull through. I am going to fight this thing out. I can't die before I fix George out for life. I feel better and I can see."

The doctor in attendance said that he thought the visit of his sisters and his son had done McCoy good. Unless a severe or a still further complication sets in McCoy has a good fighting chance for life and his eyesight.

MEAT TRUST LEGALLY
KNOCKED OUT IN NEW YORK

ALBANY, June 4.—Justice Chester has granted an injunction restraining the beef packing companies of the West from carrying on business in this State in violation of the provisions of the Donnelly Anti-Trust law.

The order was served upon the representatives of the concerns in this city and Troy to-day and will be served on others throughout the State as quickly as they can be reached.

It was obtained upon the affidavit of D. W. Meredith, a former manager of Swift & Co.

The injunction is directed against Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Cudahy Packing Company, Hammond Company, Schwarzschild and Sulzberger Company, domestic and foreign corporations, and against Nelson Morris, Edward Morris and Ira N. Morris, co-partners, carrying on business as Nelson Morris & Co.

The order directs that their managers, agents, attorneys and servants, and all persons acting for them, are restrained and enjoined from fixing and determining by combining together the prices to be charged for meat and from agreeing between themselves as the supply of meat to be brought into this State by them, and from acting upon any understanding tending to diminish such supply and from fixing or maintaining prices of their and each other's products, by agreement between them.

They are also enjoined from acting under any agreement whereby the price of labor shall be affected or competition therein concerned, and also from maintaining uniform prices for credit to dealers or fixing uniform prices for carriage.

In obtaining an injunction Attorney-General Davies asked that it be made permanent, and Justice Chester directed that it continue until the further order of the court.
